For the past two decades, La Jolla-based architect and interior designer Alicia Calhoon has incorporated elevated, intuitive design into her clients' homes, creating spaces that function optimally for their unique lifestyles. As both a licensed architect and interior designer, Alicia bridges the divide between the two disciplines to offer a streamlined experience that begins with even the smallest late-stage details in place. The result is a project that effortlessly stays on budget and on time. To ensure cohesion throughout each phase, Alicia handles everything from feasibility studies, schematic designs, construction documents, permitting, and coordination of subcontractors to purchasing and placing all finishing touches. Communication with clients is vital to the success of each project, so Alicia works to thoroughly understand her clients' aesthetics and vision — and consistently exceeds expectations.
